

Case 1

My boy Lok has started the tongue acupuncture treatment at about 4 years old. He has received 4 sessions weekly of the tongue acupuncture that has been lasting already over 1 year so far. Now, he also has trained in the special child center.

When we knew about tongue acupuncture, we used to worry about our time and cost. After considering the golden recovery period of sick children is very short, our life would only get more and more strenuous if we had missed out on it, we decided to try the tongue acupuncture finally. Whatever, we understood that we would also pay to try other therapies even though we did not receive tongue acupuncture, so why didn't let him have a try on it for a period of three months?

I have planned to make it at least four times a week, to see if it works, we will continue; otherwise, we give up. After the first 10 sessions, we found that my boy had paid much more attention to his surroundings like people and things. His ambient perception was improved, action response was faster, and no longer lives in his own world.

Before tongue acupuncture, he never looked at you nor acted until you yelled at him for many times, just like he didn't pay attention to what you said to him. Then, the tongue acupuncture showed the effect up on my child. We decided to continue the treatment whatever and aimed to have a good evaluation for his admission to primary school.

As a result, I was happy to see him perform good evaluation that allowed him to enter the mainstream primary school finally. Summarizing my experience, I think tongue acupuncture can stimulate his internal potential (I described it as if some things have been connected and awakened inside his body). Thus, what he is trained in school can be showed off with ease now.
